The history of the M-16 rifle

The rifle entered United States Army service and was deployed for jungle warfare operations in South Vietnam in 1963, becoming the U.S. military's standard service rifle of the Vietnam War by 1969, replacing the M14 rifle in that role. The U.S. Army retained the M14 in CONUS, Europe, and South Korea until 1970. Since the Vietnam War, the M16 rifle family has been the primary service rifle of the U.S. armed forces.

The M16 has also been widely adopted by other militaries around the world. Total worldwide production of M16-style weapons since the design's inception has been approximately 8 million, making it the most-produced firearm of its caliber. In 2010, the M16 began to be phased out in the U.S. Army and is being replaced by the M4 carbine, which is itself a shortened derivative of the M16A2. The M16 is a lightweight, 5.56 mm, air-cooled, gasoperated, magazine-fed assault rifle, with a rotating bolt, actuated by direct impingement gas operation. The rifle is made of steel, 7075 aluminum alloy, composite plastics and polymer materials.

In the early 1960s, the U.S. Air Force's rifle, the M16, and the Army's XM16E1, were the first versions of the M16 rifle fielded. Soon the U.S. Army standardized an upgrade of the XM16E1 as the M16A1 rifle, an M16 with a forward assist feature and other improvements requested by the Army. All of the early versions were chambered to fire the M193/M196 cartridge in the semi-automatic and the automatic firing modes. This occurred in the early 1960s, with the Army issuing it in late 1964. Commercial AR-15s were first issued to Special Forces troops in spring of 1964.

The M16A2 rifle entered service in the 1980s, being ordered in large scale by 1987, chambered to fire the standard NATO cartridge, the Belgian-designed M855/M856 cartridge. The M16A2 is a select-fire rifle (semi-automatic fire, three-round-burst fire) incorporating design elements requested by the Marine Corps: [111] an adjustable, windage rear-sight; a stock $\frac{5}{8}$ inches (15.9 mm) longer; heavier barrel; case deflector for left-hand shooters; and cylindrical hand guards. The fire mode selector is on the receiver's left side.

The M16A3 rifle is an M16A2 rifle with an M16A1's fire control group (semi-automatic fire, automatic fire) that is used only by the U.S. Navy.

The M16A4 rifle was standard issue for the United States Marine Corps in Operation Iraqi Freedom since 2004; it replaced the M16A2 in front line units. In the U.S. Army the M16A2 rifle is being supplemented with two rifle models, the M16A4 and the M4 carbine as the standard issue assault rifle. The M16A4 has a flattop receiver developed for the M4 carbine, a handguard with four Picatinny rails for mounting a sight, laser, night vision device, forward handgrip, removable handle, or a flashlight.

The M16 rifle is principally manufactured by Colt and Fabrique Nationale de Herstal (under a U.S. military contract since 1988 by FNH-USA; currently in production since 1991, primarily M16A2, A3, and A4), with variants made elsewhere in the world.

A very essential resource for Veterans in the Columbia Basin: Columbia Basin

Veteran Coalition

YOU SERVED OUR COUNTRY—NOW LET US SERVE YOU!

For veterans in the Prosser, Grandview, Benton City, Yakima, Tri-Cities and region, there is a new one stop shop in place, whose sole mission is to help veterans and their families access benefits and resources. The Columbia Basin Veteran Coalition, a 501C3, nonprofit, with an office in Pasco, provides services to aid transitional veterans in assimilating back into the civilian environment as well as provides services to area veterans wondering where to find help, have questions answered about veteran resources.

"Transitional Veterans" are defined as those veterans entering the civilian environment after completion of active duty or release from the reserves or National Guard. The needs of a combat veteran generally exceed those veterans that did not see duty outside the United States, however, we provide services to all qualified veterans.

Numerous benefit and educational programs provided by Federal, State and Local Governments are available to Veterans who have served this Nation. In addition, veteran service organizations provide management of some government funds for a few programs. Many of these existing programs are either under-used or misused in the delivery of the best available help for veterans re-adjusting to civilian life.

Rather than duplicate or replace these existing programs. Columbia Basin Veterans' Coalition provides the support, guidance and resources to augment and bolster these programs by performing the following:

Columbia Basin Veterans' Coalition provides intensive one-on-one assistance and coaching to each individual veteran to help him or her re-adjust to civilian life in the most efficient and satisfying way possible. We take the time to help veterans define their goals and to monitor their progress towards those goals. This is the most unique and distinctive element of our organization.

They provide communication, advocacy, and intervention to assist the veteran with various agencies and educational institutions for the benefit of the veteran or veterans as a whole. By so doing, we assist organizations in meeting their service goals.

Semper Fi is the shortened term for Semper Fidelis which is Latin for "Always Faithful"

Semper Fidelis is Latin for "Always Faithful". Well known in the United States of America as the motto of the United States Marine Corps, this phrase, often shortened to Semper Fi (pronounced / sɛmpər 'faɪ/) in Marine contexts, has served as a slogan for many families and entities, in many countries, dating at least as far back as the 14th century. Within the groups below, users are listed in chronological order according to when they are believed to have adopted the motto; however, in many cases dates of adoption are not well established.

The United States Marine Corps adopted the motto Semper Fidelis in 1883, on the initiative of Colonel Charles McCawley (January 29, 1827 – October 13, 1891), the 8th Commandant of the Marine Corps.

There were three mottos prior to Semper Fidelis including "Fortitudine" (meaning "with courage") antedating the War of 1812, "Per Mare, Per Terram" ("by sea, by land"; presumably inherited from the British Royal Marines, whose motto it already was), and, up until 1843, there was also the motto "To the Shores of Tripoli". "Semper fidelis" signifies the dedication and loyalty that individual Marines have for "Corps and Country", even after leaving service.

Marines frequently shorten the motto to "Semper Fi". "Semper Fidelis" is also the title of the official march of the United States Marine Corps, composed by John Philip Sousa in 1889. Sousa was director of the United States Marine Band ("The President's Own") when a replacement for Hail to the Chief was requested, but later rejected. Sousa considered it to be his "most musical" march. It was prominently featured in the movie A Few Good Men. Charles Burr wrote the lyrics to the march.

On the United States Marine Corps Seal, the eagle of the Eagle, Globe, and Anchor emblem holds a ribbon emblazoned "Semper Fidelis".

The Walla Walla VA Medical Center, which is home base for all veterans in our area utilizing VA health services, is filled with signs of construction and progress. In the recent photo above, the frame of the 67,000 square foot outpatient clinic is taking shape and is projected to be completed in the spring 2013. Not shown is the 36-bed residential rehabilitation unit also slated to open in spring 2013. The third of the three major construction projects, a specialty clinic building, is in the design phase, with estimates for completion of one year. The VA also offers health care services in Richland and Yakima for lower valley vet's convenience.

Boot camp is old hat to this seasoned veteran

By Richard Burger

The other guys in his boot camp company called him Ol' G.

But when he was about six months shy of his 50th birthday, Spec. 4 James Meador could outrun about a third of the 218 men in his company.

Perhaps he had a bit of an advantage. This wasn't the first time he had been through basic training.

"They told me I inspired them," said

He joined the U.S. air Force when he was 18, and served as an enlisted man for 10 years.

However, after Operation Desert Storm, because the military was being scaled down, he was not given the opportunity re-enlist.

He then joined the National Guard, where he served until he had the opportunity to join the U.S. Army Reserves.

Meador said an Army recruiter did some research into Meador's eligibility to join the Reserves, and discovered that he had not quite exceeded the age limit.

"I just made it under the wire," Meador said.

He was sent to Ft. Benning, Ga., for basic training, and though he welcomed the opportunity to be in the Reserves, he had no illusions about what he would be facing

"I knew it was going to be different (than Air Force boot camp)," Meador said. "It was longer and more intense."

The training regimen took some getting used to, he said, "but after the second week, it kind of clicked."

During the 10 weeks of training, he fired a variety of high-tech weapons, such as an anti-tank weapon and a grenade launcher, which he enjoyed.

He also discovered that, even though he hadn't shot a rifle in about 15 years, he hadn't lost his touch.

"I made sharpshooter," he said.

The culmination of the training was what Meador called FTX. His company spent a week marching several miles a day in the woods.

Then, each man strapped on 90 pounds of gear and marched 10 miles out of the woods in the dark.

He characterized the experience as "really emotional."

"The next day, you felt like you got beat," he said.

He completed one more four-week bout of training later, a refresher course in truck driving. That's his official Army job.

Meanwhile, Meador has returned to his regular job as chef at Sunnyside Community Hospital.

However, as a trained Army enlisted man, he is now eligible to be deployed to a war zone.

He said if he is sent overseas, it will be a one-year deployment.

Meador said he's ready for it. The best part of his last stint in boot camp was becoming familiar with the weapons the Army uses now.

"You've got to know what you're doing," he said.

Submitted photo Spec. 4 James Meador, of Grandview, stands in his dress blues after graduation from U.S. Army boot camp at Ft. Benning, Ga. Meador is quite possibly the holder of the Guiness Book of World records as the oldest man to do so, at 49 ½ years of age.

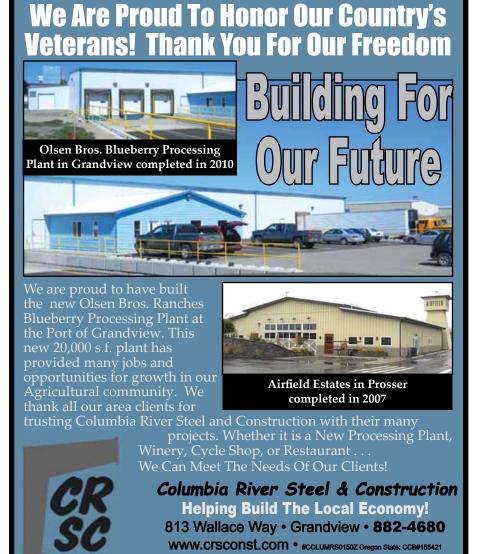

'The Greatest Generation'

"The Greatest Generation" is a term coined by journalist Tom Brokaw to describe the generation who grew up in the United States during the deprivation of the Great Depression, and then went on to fight in World War II, as well as those whose productivity within the war's home front made a decisive material contribution to the war effort.

The generation is sometimes referred to as the G.I. Generation (a term coined by authors William Strauss and Neil Howe who are known for their generational theory). It follows the Lost Generation who fought in World War I and precedes the Silent Generation who did not come of age until near the end of the war. Baby boomers are mostly the children of the Greatest Generation, although some are also silent generation. Their grandchildren are mostly of Generation X and Generation Y. The youngest members of the Greatest Generation may have Generation Z grandchildren.

The Greatest Generation is generally agreed to have begun in 1901, as those people would have turned 18 after World War I ended. However, people born from 1901 to 1909 came of age during the 1920s and identified more with the culture of that decade than the 1930s and 1940s. The core of the Greatest Generation consists of those born in 1914–1924, with 1925–1927 forming a bridge to the Silent Generation.

Most Greatest Generation members were the children of the Lost Generation (which spanned 1883–1900). Their children are generally Baby Boomers or Silent Generation.

VFW coupon program gears up for holidays

By Richard Burger

Despite the loss of the Grandview VFW Post building, the coupon program headed by Louise Bianchi marches ahead.

Bianchi said last week that she is still collecting coupons. The Grandview program is part of a statewide VFW program that collects and sends the coupons to bases manned by every branch of the military service.

She collects hundreds of thousands of coupons which she ships to overseas military bases around the world for use by the families stationed there.

"We definitely plan on keeping it up, no matter what happens," Bianchi said. "Those families need our help."

Currently, the coupons can be dropped off by community members at the Grandview Herald office.

Despite what seems like an avalanche of coupons that flow out, Bianchi said more are always needed.

She said the list of bases that are served has doubled over the last three or four years.

That list is developed and maintained by the state VFW organization, Bianchi said.

Military families that receive the coupons use them in their base commissary for food items and in the base PX for non-food items.

The value of the coupons is staggering. Bianchi said coupons sent between July of 2010 and Jan. 1, 2011 totaled more than $178,000.

In addition to the coupons that typically come through newspaper promotions, Bianchi said she also collects box tops, soup labels, biscuit containers, and other sources.

Bianchi expressed her appreciation to the Grandview community for the coupons they provide to her, but she can always use lots more.

For those who would like to help, she suggests gathering the coupons for a while, then turning them in when they accumulate.

"I put mine in an envelope," she said, "and when I get a bunch, I send Bianchi said she is also collecting donations for the Christmas care packages to be sent to military personnel overseas.

In addition, she is moving ahead with a program that provides quilts for wounded military personnel recovering in hospital trauma units.

Those interested in making donations or in providing quilts for the wounded are encouraged to contact Bianchi at 509-781-0730.

Wreaths Across America deadline near

By Richard Burger

The deadline for ordering wreaths for the Wreaths Across America" program is less than a week away, and community members who wish to participate are encouraged to place their wreath orders soon.

Grandview will participate in the program for the second time this year.

It began at Arlington National Cemetery and now includes more than 500 cemeteries across the nation.

Wreaths Across America is sponsored by the Gold Star Mothers of Washington and assisted by Grandview's American Legion Post

Grandview Gold Star Mother Ginger Emerson is spearheading the program here.

The objective of the program is threefold.

It will be to remember the service and sacrifice of veterans and to honor them by placing a Christmas wreath at as many veterans' graves as possible in a ceremony on Saturday, Dec. 15, at the Grandview Cemetery.

It also provides the opportunity to teach young people about the importance of honoring those who have served in the U.S. military.

Emerson said there are about 460 veterans' graves in the Grandview Cemetery, one dating back to the Civil War

The local ceremony will coincide with the placing of a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery, and will take place at exactly 9 a.m., Emerson said.

- "I hate war as only a soldier who has lived it can, only as one who has seen its brutality, its futility, its stupidity."
- Dwight D Eisenhower
- "If God had meant for us to be in the Army, we would have been born with green, baggy skin."

The ceremony in Grandview will be the same as the one carried out at every participating community from coast to coast.

"It is a solemn and wonderful ceremony," Emerson said.

It will include the placement of seven ceremonial wreaths, one for each branch of the military, one for the merchant marine service, and one for POW/MIA personnel.

Wreaths may be purchased for $15 each and $5 of each one purchased will go to the Gold Star Mothers of Washington organization to help support their programs, Emerson said.

Family donations of $60 will purchase 4 wreaths, small business donations of $150 will purchase 10 wreaths and corporate donations of $1,500 will purchase 100 wreaths.

Emerson said volunteers are also needed to help with the laying of the wreaths.

She said her hope is that the program will continue annually and expand to Sunnyside and Prosser in coming years.

"We are asking people to either honor specific veterans or donate to decorate a veteran's grave at the cemetery," she said.

Orders for wreaths may be placed through Nov. 15.

To obtain order information or arrange for a presentation about the program to a local group, call Emerson at 882-3801, Bev Schliep at 882-3191.

Wreaths Across America also has a web site at www.wreathsacrossamerica. org, where wreaths can be ordered. Ordering online requires the use of special codes that are included in the information in the program brochures.

The brochures are available at McClure Elementary School, the Grandview Herald office, and at Grandview City Hall.

The Gold Star Mothers of Washington is made up of mothers who have lost a child in service to their country. Emerson's son Matt died in Iraq in 2007.

Grandview Gold Star Mother Ginger Emerson shares plans for the Wreaths Across America program with the Grandview Chamber of Commerce Oct. 4. For the second year, the program seeks to place a Christmas wreath at the grave of as many veterans as possible in the Grandview Cemetery. The ceremony this year will be held on Dec. 15, at 9 a.m. sharp.

Fast War Facts

The shortest war on record took place in 1896 when Zanzibar surrendered to Britain after 38 minutes.

The longest was the so-called 100-years war between Britain and France. It actually lasted 116 years, ending in 1453.

It was during the 100-years war that direct taxation on income was introduced, a British invention designed to finance the war with France.

Since 1495, no 25-year period has been without war.

Since 1815 there has been more than 210 interstate wars.

Awards and decorations for military

Awards and decorations of the United States Military are the military awards including decorations which recognize service and personal accomplishments while a member of the United States Armed Forces. Together with military badges, such awards are a means to outwardly display the highlights of a service member's career.

The Bronze Star Medal is individual military award of the United States Armed Forces. It may be awarded for acts of heroism, acts of merit, or meritorious service in a combat zone. When awarded for acts heroism, of the medal is awarded with the "V" device. The medal is sometimes referred to as the Bronze Star and is the fourth-highest combat decoration and the ninth highest U.S. military award in order of precedence

The Silver Star, referred to as the Silver Star Medal by the Navy and Corps, Marine is the third highest military decoration for valor that can be awarded to any person serving in any capacity with the United States Armed Forces. The medal is awarded for gallantry in action against an enemy of the United States.

Heart is United States military decoration awarded the name of the President to those who have been wounded or killed while serving on or after April 5, 1917 with the U.S. With military. its forerunner, the Badge of Military Merit, which took the form of a heart made of purple cloth, the Purple Heart is the oldest military award that is still given to members of the U.S. military, the only earlier award being the obsolete Fidelity Medallion. The National Purple Heart Hall of Honor is located in New Windsor, New York.

The Medal of Honor is the United States of America's highest military honor, awarded for acts of valor above and beyond the call of duty. The medal is awarded by the President of the United States in the name of Congress. Although the medal is sometimes referred to as the Congressional Medal of Honor, the original and official title is the "Medal of Honor". There are three versions of the medal, one for the Army, one for the Navy, and one for the Air Force. Members of the Marine Corps and Coast Guard receive the Navy version.

The Medal of Honor is usually presented by the President at the White House in a formal ceremony intended to represent the gratitude of the American people.

U.S. Marine Corps Hymn (Marine Hymn)

From the Halls of Montezuma
To the Shores of Tripoli;
We fight our country's battles
In the air, on land and sea;
First to fight for right and freedom
And to keep our honor clean;
We are proud to claim the title of United States Marine.
Our flag's unfurled to every breeze
From dawn to setting sun;
We have fought in ev'ry clime and

Where we could take a gun;
In the snow of far-off Northern lands
ea;
And in sunny tropic scenes;
You will find us always on the job-The United States Marines.
Here's health to you and to our Corps exervise very breeze
un;
You clime and

Which we are proud to serve
In many a strife we've fought for life
And never lost our nerve;
If the Army and the Navy
Ever look on Heaven's scenes;
They will find the streets are guarded
By United States Marines.

Fast War Facts

During the 1991 Gulf War, the Allies dropped more than 17,000 smart bombs and 210,000 dumb (unguided) bombs on Iraqi troops. About 50% of arms exports go to non-democratic regimes.

Dedication and Honor a Tradition of Caring...

PMH Medical Center grew out of the community's desire to honor local World War II veterans. What began as a tribute to local heroes has grown into a progressive non-profit organization dedicated to providing first class healthcare to thousands of people each year.

PMH Medical Center opened its doors as a 19-bed facility in 1947 and was dedicated to the community's veterans of World War II.
